READING

5 Read the letter.

Dear Me,

I'm very excited about traveling to India this year. What will it be like to be on the other side of the world? It will be the biggest trip of my life so far. I'm not going alone. I'm traveling with students who go to different schools here. I have my visa, which arrived in the mail yesterday. It's on a page in my passport. I have my plane tickets, too. We're leaving in June! First, we're flying to New York, and then to Chicago. After that, there's a 13-hour flight to Seoul, South Korea, and finally an eight-hour flight to Mumbai, India.

I'm anxious – I'll be away from home for two months! I'm going to take some language and culture classes and live with a family in Mumbai. Will I feel at home? I don't know! But I'll call my family often, and I'll chat online with my friends.

I'm sure of one thing: I'm going to have some interesting experiences!

Have a great time!

WRITING

7 Read the email.

From: Me

To: Andrea

Hi Andrea,

How are things? You're moving back to San Diego! Are you going to live in this neighborhood? It's almost the same as when you left. A great pizza restaurant just opened on my street. It's called Uncle Tony's. You'll love it!

When are you coming? My birthday is next month and I'm going to have a small party. You can't miss it!

See you soon!

Paola

Complete the sentences with who, that or which.

1 Paola is writing to her friend Andrea, _____ lived in San Diego in the past.
2 Uncle Tony's is a restaurant _____ sells great pizza.
3 Paola is going to have a party for her birthday, _____ is next month.
